

How Colorado Employers Are Adapting to the COVID-19 Outbreak

In partnership with the Denver Regional Council of Governments, Colorado Society for Human Resource Management (SHRM) conducted a member survey to determine how employers were adapting to the COVID-19 outbreak. Here's what we learned:

29%

felt offering telework options was essential to business continuity during the stay-at-home order.

81% of senior management

73% of supervisory-level management

VIEW TELEWORK MORE FAVORABLY TODAY THAN THEY HAD BEFORE.

86% expect to permit teleworking after the COVID-19 outbreak.

65% already have or plan to develop a formal, written policy on telework.

For more information or to get telework support, visit WayToGo.org.

